What is the difference between a 20c+ LiPoly and a mAh battery?

We have achieved our goal by drastically increasing the battery capacity (mAh) while lowering the discharge rate. This results in a battery which is still capable of providing sufficient current (Amps) while offering much higher capacity when compared to a standard 20C+ LiPoly battery of the same weight.

This calculator is useful for various battery types, including lithium-ion, LiFePO4, and 12V batteries. READ ALSO : Chemistry Volume Calculator. To calculate battery drain time, you need to know two things: the capacity of the battery, usually measured in ampere-hours (Ah), and the load it will be powering, measured in watts (W).
